

NATIONAL ADVERB DAY

Exercise 2

Directions: Correct the 5 mistakes in the letter that Hank sent to President Obama.

Dear Mr. President,

As you know, January fourteenth is National Adverb Day. Punky says that this is the most important day on your agenda. Bearing this in mind, I hope that you will consider a real good suggestion. Please make National Adverb Day an official holiday. That means that kids will have a day off from school.

Please tell Congress to decide quick. Maybe they can come up with a special adverb test, and only the kids that do good on it can get the day off. I think that kids will take adverbs more serious if you act now. It has been an honor to serve you.

Sincerely,

Hank

P.S. Excuse me for any errors in this letter. I wrote it real quick.
